

COMMUNITY EDUCATION SESSION

Why is it important to work with the human will? What are some practical strategies for working with the will?

Please join John and Tina Whisson for an evening of informal discussion on why Steiner speaks about the value of engaging the human will in today's time.

There will be a general overview of the three aspects of the human being. Followed by ways we can work with and engage the human will. In the context of the school, the home, and our adult lives. The evening will conclude with time to raise questions.

John and Tina Whisson are committed and experienced practitioners of Steiner Pedagogy. They founded, taught, and helped lead the Mount Barker Waldorf School for many years. Together (and with others) John and Tina have worked tirelessly to bring life to Steiner Education in South Australia. They have two daughters, both graduates of Mount Barker Waldorf School.
